

Story of the Month: June 2009

This month, the Chirag School expanded its campus to a newly constructed classroom block. The new block has magnificent views of the valley and surrounding oak forests and is located a few terraces below the pre-primary block, steps away from the Chirag Farm.

The idea is to create activity centers within each of the classroom, each dedicated to a particular discipline or activity - for instance, we now have one for language, math, science, art and craft. As the school progresses through its curriculum and students get involved with projects in each of these activities, we hope that the centers will become a hub for learning and creativity within their disciplines.

The pre-primary block continues to be used by group 1 and 2 students, however students of grade 1 to 3 who were sharing space with the teachers and administrators of the school now have a space of their own.

Chirag School children making their way to the new primary block

